Wheels Over Water: Kyssebroen

By Jonathan Ma

Biking in Copenhagen is like biking in another world.

After all, nothing could have prepared me for my first bike ride in Copenhagen. Yes, it was chaotic, with the constant whizzing of intensely pedaling cyclists and the sound of dinging bike bells as I was constantly passed on the left.

But what made me really appreciate cycling here is how deeply ingrained it is in Danish culture. All it takes is one look outside, and you will see cyclists everywhere, no matter their age or the weather outside.

And on a beautiful day, nothing can beat the magical feeling of the wind blowing behind your back as you pedal up one of the many bridges crossing Copenhagen's harbor and are rewarded by the beautiful view of the city.

It's a truly unique experience that you can't find anywhere else in the world.
